

Lunar applications

Energy is a limited resource on the Moon, while regolith is plentiful. The partial fusing of regolith is an energy efficient way of manufacturing many useful solid objects.

A nanometric layer of vaporized aluminum added between each layer significantly increases the performance of the produced parts.

This innovative, patent pending fabrication method will enable Kilncore Fusion to stand out in the new Lunar economy.

